the routledge handbook of henri lefebvre the city and urban society is the first edited book to focus on lefebvre s urban theories and ideas from a global perspective making use of recent theoretical and empirical developments with contributions from eminent as well as emergent global scholars the book provides international comparison of lefebvrrian research and theoretical conjecture and aims to engage with and critique lefebvre s ideas in the context of contemporary urban social and environmental upheavals to use lefebvre s spatial triad as a research tool as well as a point of departure for the adoption of ideas such as differential space to reassess lefebvre s ideas in relation to nature and global environmental sustainability and to highlight how a lefebvrrian approach might assist in mobilising resistance to the excesses of globalised neoliberal urbanism the volume draws inspiration from lefebvre s key texts the production of space critique of everyday life and the urban revolution and includes a comprehensive introduction and concluding chapter by the editors the conclusions highlight implications in relation to increasing spatial inequalities increasing diversity of needs including those of migrants more authoritarian approaches and asymmetries of access to urban space above all the book illustrates the continuing relevance of lefebvre s ideas for contemporary urban issues and shows via global case studies how resistance to spatial domination by powerful interests might be achieved the handbook helps the reader navigate the complex terrain of spatial research inspired by lefebvre in particular the handbook focuses on the series of struggles globally for the right to the city and the collision of debates around the urban age cityism and planetary urbanisation it will be a guide for graduate and advanced undergraduate teaching and a key reference for academics in the fields of human geography sociology political science applied philosophy planning urban theory and urban studies practitioners and activists in the field will also find the book of relevance palaeolithic societies have been a neglected topic in the discussion of human origins in this book which succeeds and replaces the palaeolithic settlement of europe published by cambridge university press in 1986 clive gamble challenges the established view that the social life of europeans over the 500 000 years of the european palaeolithic must remain a mystery in the past forty years archaeologists have recovered a wealth of information from sites throughout the continent professor gamble now introduces a new approach to this material he examines the archaeological evidence from stone tools hunting and campsites for information on the scale of social interaction and the forms of social life taking a pan european view of the archaeological evidence he reconstructs ancient human societies and introduces new perspectives on the unique social experience of human beings hong kong boasts a number of rich archaeological sites behind sandy bays among these backbeaches is sha po on lamma island a site which has long captured the attention of archaeologists however until now no comprehensive study of the area has ever been published piecing together sha po presents the first sustained analysis framed in terms of a multi period social landscape of the varieties of human activity in sha po spanning more than 6 000 years synthesising decades of earlier fieldwork together with atha and yip s own extensive excavations conducted in 2008 2010 the discoveries collectively enabled the authors to reconstruct the society in sha po in different historical periods the artefacts unearthed from the site some of them unique to the region reveal a vibrant past which saw the inhabitants of sha po interacting with the environment in diverse ways evidence showing the mastery of quartz ornament manufacture and metallurgy in the bronze age suggests increasing craft specialisation and the rise of a more complex competitive society later on during the six dynasties tang period sha po turned into a centre in the region s imperially controlled kiln based salt industry closer to our time in the nineteenth century the farming and fishing communities in sha po became important suppliers of food and fuel to urban hong kong ultimately this ground breaking work tells a compelling story about human beings ceaseless reinvention of their lives through the lens of one special archaeological site a singular effort in the field of hong kong archaeology piecing together sha po adopts a social landscape approach to chart the development of a single site over millennia of occupation revealing as it does the untapped potential which careful field investigations hold for generating a better understanding of the region's rich past. Francis Allard, Department of Anthropology, Indiana University of Pennsylvania. This volume is the best overview of the early history of Hong Kong that I know. The authors have articulated patterns of human settlement at Sha Po in a masterly way that informs us not only of Lamma Island or Greater Hong Kong but of Lingnan as a whole. I welcome it as the key source for specialists and the interested public alike. Charles Higham, Department of Anthropology and Archaeology, University of Otago, New Zealand. It is rare indeed for a multi-period study of a region to not only synthesise a vast range of archaeological material but also include incisive points of theory alongside that narrative such as the need to understand evidence at a landscape level and questioning the utility of Neolithic and Bronze Age categories. This is such a book. Steve Roskams, Department of Archaeology, University of York.

First published in 2003, this study analyzes contributions made by Kwame Nkrumah (1909–1972) to the development of Pan-African Agency from the 1945 Pan-African Congress in Manchester to the military coup d'état of Nkrumah's government in February 1966.

Through out the current period of educational change, geography education has also changed. The innovations may be the starting point to affect conceptual change and paradigm shifts. Geography education assimilates and integrates knowledge, skills, and scientific methodologies. The ten articles in this book illuminate a wide range of topics of interest to geography education. In their article, Skarstein and Wolff discuss how the interplay between the environment, society, and economy pillars of sustainability thinking play out on scales of time, space, and multitude, and how geography teachers can support the students' understanding of sustainability. Yli-Panula et al. analysed used teaching and learning methods to find out good ones for promoting sustainability in geography. The same idea can be found in Duffin's and Perry's article on place-based ecology education. In their article, Dür and Keller discuss the topics of quality of life, sustainability, and global justice based on the goals of education for sustainable development. Evaluation is an important part of learning; it is reviewed by Schauss and Sprenger regarding climate change education. The following two articles deal with students' views of landscapes worth conserving. In both studies, students expressed concern about the state of the environment. Yli-Panula et al. found that the Mexican students seldom considered their own activities in relation to the environment, while Yli-Panula et al. stated that only some of the Finnish and Swedish students act as observers while others actively care for their environment. The remaining three articles deal with teaching methods and models. Benninghaus et al. present a benchmark method which allows statements about the quality of the maps/diagrams in general. Álvarez-Otero and de Lázaro y Torres, on the other hand, describe their technological pedagogical content knowledge model. Kopnina and Saari discuss student assignments reflecting on the documentary film through critical pedagogy and ecopedagogy.
